Originally born and raised in California I moved to Florida at the age of 8. I began my modeling career just over a year ago after walking a charity runway show. I currently model and hold a college degree in psychology. My favorite hobbies include shopping of course. But, I have a huge passion for art, fine jewelry, and volunteering my time for good causes. I believe humility is always the sexiest trait any woman can have. I plan on completing my grad degree very soon to help people who have been victims to head trauma injuries as a behavioral analysis. I find helping others the most rewarding feeling in the world.

Achievements: I have in my short career in the industry walked New York Fashion Week. I graduated at the top of my classes for psychology and criminology. I love traveling and I have almost accomplished all of my travel goals. My senior year of under grad I found a medical cure for syncope while interning for a neurosurgeon.

Kendra May

I'm Kendra from a small town in Arkansas. I have a son and very loving supporters. I am big on family and making people laugh. A good laugh is good for the soul and has people feeling better even if it's just for a moment. I recently got into modeling as a way to prove to not only myself but also to others who have curves that we are sexy and people do like curvy women. Today women have to be confident in themselves and their bodies. There is nothing wrong with having curves and loving them.

I also have a small business called Soulful Impressions that I started up in September of 2017. Its soul food restaurant that's done from within my home and plates are delivered to those who are looking to make their souls happy. Since I've started this business I also attend an online college for entrepreneurship. This degree is going to help me expand in more than one way throughout my life.

Achievements: My experience as a model started in February of 2018. I have plans and dreams just like every other model. Mine is to be internationally known and to be a household name. My goals are to have major contracts with major business brands and be across billboards and magazines. I'm currently also looking for sponsors for my career because I have about seven states worth of photographers that are ready to work with me. So far I have accomplished working with about twelve photographers and video directors. There has been some amazing magic created within this short amount of time that I see nothing but good coming towards my career in modeling.

I once was in a relationship with a man that I now know is a narcissist. He had me to feel that I was only for him and that we would soon be married. I came to realize that he was using and manipulating me to get what he wanted. I was scared for my life and others for about 2 years. After getting the courage to stand up for myself, family and friends I finally had enough of being walked over, talked down upon, and walking on eggshells. I finally ended the horrible relationship. I never realized how much love can paint a rose-colored picture of your reality. This was the worst relationship to deal with especially after the aftermath was gone. I ended up having mental disabilities that became stronger through the relationship that has now permanently damaged me. So now that it has been two years I'm still currently since and looking to focus on my career, degree, and son.

Techi Martin

Techi Martin is a full time model currently living in Southern California. She was born into a life of travel. Both her parents were missionaries following a higher calling to serve mankind abroad. During one of their missions to the Philippines, Techi was born. Techi gets her namesake from the famous Filipina model, Techi Ayagbayani.

At age 3 she moved to Japan and began her modeling. At 7 years her parents were called to Argentina where she learned to speak Spanish. Turning 10 Techi's family moved to Brazil. She recalls, "I loved the Brazilian spirit and the way they expressed themselves, not holding back" At 13 years old they moved to Morelia Michoacan, Mexico, But the traveling does not stop there.

Once she turned 17, Techi felt a calling of her own. She joined the US Army, working as a secretary, stationed at Fort Riley, KS. She was deployed to Iraq, for Operation Iraqi freedom 3. After fulfilling her service with the Army, Techi decided to take some much-needed time off. She traveled to Maui, Hawaii with her cousin.

In Hawaii she learned how to diet and exercise, grow vegetables and take care of chickens. After spending 3 years in Hawaii and traveling to Australia, Ireland, Italy, Spain, and Costa Rica it was time to go home. Techi and her cousin went home to California to work and save up for traveling expenses. "We decided to hitchhike from Costa Rica to Baja California, to save money"

Techi remembers 7 days of traveling in semi-trucks, and 7 nights of roughing it. "We nearly crossed a border line each day of our trip." says Techi.

"I remember crossing the border into the states, seeing such a difference of how clean and organized it was with no trash on the road".

At the age of 25 Techí decided to become a missionary herself. She served in Ensenada, Baja California. From Ensenada she moved to Guadalajara, Mexico and then Reynosa, Mexico, and traveled to Canada. Always being self-supported by selling Christian materials, such as scrolls, bibles, ect.

After spending time as a missionary and a traveling model, Techí's next goal was to become a mother, "I've always wanted 10 kids of my own growing up."

"It took me forever to find the right partner, and I had to kiss a lot of frogs to find my prince. It's kind of like modeling, I had to shoot with a lot of photographers to find the right ones for me, who would capture my images best."

Techí is now a mother of 2, "My kids have taught me patience and how the best things in life take time, especially the ones that are worth it. Having a daughter has changed my life and made me work harder so I can have a good career and be a good example to show her that anything is possible. If you believe it, you can achieve it. I still have a long way to get to the top. But like a journey with a thousand miles, it begins with a single step. I walk with faith. I work hard. I am determined."
